tounty Lawyers Society Brought the case Before the Appellate Division, Which Strikes Schapiro's Name From . Rolls Dr. Dawbarn Involved.

the first disbarment ordered by the reflate Division of the Supreme Court seeding brought by the New York lawyers Association was disterday in the case of Louis E. At the same time the court dired the petitioner to call the attention the United States District Attorney to e testimony of Dr. Robert H. M. Dawa-n. a physician, in a proceeding in the Cederal court which was in contrast with his own affidavit in the disbarment proceedings against Schapiro.

The charges against Schapiro were that he brought an action for one Rosenblatt in the United States Circuit Court against the firm of Gould & Eberhardt for personal injuries. Dr. Dawbarn had attended Rosenblatt for the injuries allege to have been received, and after he was subponed as a witness Schapiro signed an agreement to pay him an amount equal to that paid to the chief attorney who tried the case for the plaintiff. On the trial Dr. Dawbarn was alleged to have testified on cross-examination that he had no interest in the case and had no understanding as to what he would get ter testifying. A verdict for $2,600 was seturned and the case was settled for $2.440. Of this amount Schapiro got half and paid the trial counsel $420.

It was charged that Schapiro permitted

Dawbarn's testimony that he had no interest in the case to go to the jury. Later Dr. Dawbarn sued Schapiro in the Municipal Court to recover the same amount he had paid the trial counsel. In his answer Schapiro said that after he had subpænæd Dr. Dawbarn the latter threatened to testify against the plaintiff unless the agreement in question was made. The physician got judgment against the lawyer and it was affirmed. In answer to the proceedings before the Bar Association Schapiro said that Dr. Dawbarn told him that if he did not make the agreement he would trastify. pr. Dawbarn told him that if he did not make the agreement he would testify that the hospital records were correct and that Rosenblatt was suffering from tuberculosis of the leg, which made amputation necessary. Schapiro said the doctor told him such an agreement was the usual one in accident cases and that he always exacted it. He said he first agreed to pay Dr. Dawbarn one-third of any amount recovered, but that Dr. Dawbarn lost the agreement and when he asked for lost the agreement and when he asked for other Schapiro made the one involved another Schapiro made the one involved in this proceeding.

Before the Appellate Division Dr. Daw-barn denied that he had made any threats to obtain the agreement and sought to explain his testimony in the trial as to his compensation. The stenographer's minutes of Dr. Dawbarn's suit against Scha-piro showed that Schapiro testified that Dawbarn said:
"You know of the record in the hospital.

"You know of the record in the hospital. I will go straighten that out. If you compel me under subpona to go it will be damaging to your client. You know what I told you the last time that you gave me the first contract—that unless I am seen right and given the writing which I lost I will testify according to the record."

The Appellate Division remarks that it is a felony for a person to induce another to give false testimony at a trial and a misdemeanor to offer a bribe to procure another to give false testimony given. "We are therefore forced to the conclusion that the respondent was guilty of the most serious professional misconduct; he was not guilty of a crime under the provisions of the penal law before recited."

The court said that while witnesses collect of the correct testimony troubles.

court said that while witnesses The court said that while witnesses called to give expert testimony involving special knowledge and skill are justified in demanding and receiving compensation for their time and labor, they are not paid for swearing to a particular state of facts. "Such an agreement, however, can never be valid where the amount to be paid is to depend upon the testimony that he is to give and where his right to compensation depends upon the result of the litigation in which he testines," says the court.

Schapiro believes that because he says Dr. Dawbarn extorted the agreement

Schapiro believes that because he says Dr. Dawbarn extorted the agreement from him by threats to testify against his client he has a complete defence to the proceedings brought against him, and because of this attitude the court decides he is not fit to remain a member of the bar.

for a long time past: situation, and this improvement is naturally accompanied by a fall in grain prices. The rains, however, have interfered a good deal with retail distribution of merchandise, and this is responsible in part for the somedifferent sections. Fundamental condi-tions are undoubtedly sounder and better than in a long time past, but immediate business, while necessarily large in view of the constant requirements of an immense population, shows reduced activity for the time being because the period of retrench-ment and readjustment is not yet ended. The optimism that prevails abroad and especially in England is beginning to have its effect in this country and must be counted as one of the influences working for improvement. The accumulation of copper continues. There is an active demand for wire, but otherwise the iron and steel onsiderable wealth, all invested in securities, and the broker said she was only one of many persons with pure investment in the expectation of much lower prices after the decisions are rendered.

The experience of the woman investor is by no means a solitary one. Scattering investors all over the country, as the delay over the trust cases has become more and more agontzing, have cut down their holdings. They have had abundant proof that experienced speculators apprehend a break in stocks following the decisions, and it is natural for many of them to follow the lead of men wise in the ways of the first quarter of the year showed a considerable, and the is natural for many of them to follow the lead of men wise in the ways of the first quarter of the year showed a considerable reduction in liabilities as common a break in stocks following the decisions, and it is natural for many of them to follow the lead of men wise in the ways of the first quarter of the year flow, but in New York in the latest week the country and the street. Thus the future outlook nay be said to have profited at the expense of the present. Rain, snow and rather widely distributed cold weather were a bar to retail trade early in the week, but the long delayed arrival of warm weather country trade, except in lines catering directly to agricultural pursuits. It is to be noted that the long decline in most farm products, which are now 25 to 40 per cent below a year ago, is credited at a few points with being a retarding influence upon trade. On the other hand a few days of good weather and the recent price revisions are credited with helping the cotton goods trade slightly.

Zens of this place are parading the streets to-day armed with rifles and revolvers and holding warrants as special constables in order to prevent a repetition of the battle which was waged by striking laborers against strike breakers and police yesterday.

Angered by the importation of strike breakers, 1.200 strikers on city grading contracts defied law and order and for half an hour fought the police and strike breakers with firearms and rocks. The breakers with firearms and rocks. The battle did not end until one striker was carried away at the point of death with a bullet in his stomach; one policeman, Sergt.Phillipson, had a bullet wound above one eye, and one citizen, W. A. The United Dry Goods Companies has declared its regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the common stock. Last year the or, nization earned 11 per cent. John Claffin says that this year it is likely to do equally well despite the general depression.

George F. Jones & Son said: "The unusual situation has brought about a deadlock which is not likely to be broken before some new element materializes for influencing values. Anything like successful efforts on the part of the buils in the immediate future seem improbable, although the old crop may develop activity and strength as May approaches. Public interest in the new crop, however, is not likely to be aroused to any great degree before we hear more definite reports from the field."

Dick Bros. & Co. said: "Experience has shown that when a coterie of operators sufficiently strong financially and convinced of the correctness of their position start a buil campaign there is little doubt that the market will advance so long as they continue their aggressive buying. On the other hand there are records which show that it is one thing to buy and quite another to sell at a profit. The market could easily be put higher if all the cotton sent here on May and July contracts were to be taken and a surplus short interest should be forced to cover. We doub, however, whether short interests would have the temerity to stand by their guns in view of the wide advertising given to the plans of the party now working for higher prices. The market is dangerous to the shorts so long as a large short interest exists; it is dangerous to the buils the moment the short interest is reduced. We think the latter development is proceeding rapidly."

Mrs. Kathryn H. Somborn, widow of Edward K. Somborn, president of the American Sightseeing Car and Coach Company, who died in a sanitarium on Company, who died in a sanitarium on March 8, filed notice of contest of her husband's will yesterday. The will left her only the life insurance policies, "because her conduct has been such that through no fault of mine it has been necessary for me to live separate and apart from her." Mrs. Somborn says her husband was of unsound mind.
